Understand Rapid Changes and Recognize Opportunities in a Complex Industry

While traditional sources of oil and gas continue to dwindle, our global addiction to it grows at an alarming rate. The industry also faces mounting regulatory and environmental pressure. Upstream producers are on track to spend half a trillion dollars annually to slow decline and unlock unconventional reserves. As oil and gas production becomes more challenging, technology will be the differentiator for successful companies. Lux Research's coverage of the upstream energy sector allows companies to make intelligent business decisions by:

- Identifying and monitoring new step-change innovation
- Assessing a wide variety of companies, both established and emerging
- Identifying and harnessing cutting edge innovations from adjacent industries
- Understanding and leveraging a politically driven regulatory landscape
- Comprehending the impact of innovation on incumbent leaders and markets
